Music, Writing and the Creative Process with Peter Guralnick - May 22nd

"We are the music makers, and we are the dreamers of dreams." ~ Arthur O'Shaughnessy

By Catherine Austin Fitts

Music critic and historian Peter Guralnick joins me on the Solari Report to discuss the blues, soul, rock and roll and music which expresses our deepest dreams of freedom and helps create the world in which we want to live.

Peter's two-part biography of Elvis Presley is a literary masterpiece. If you love music, or biography, if you are an Elvis fan, or you want to understand American history, then Last Train to Memphis and Careless Love are not to be missed. Peter teaches creative writing at Vanderbilt and is writing a new biography about Sam Phillips, the extraordinary entrepreneur who created Sun Records and discovered Elvis Presley among many other great musicians and performance artists.

We will talk about music as art, music as politics, music as business, music as economic engine, and music and the creative process as a source of pure joy.

It is the last week of the month. No Money & Markets this week. Expect more on current events in the financial markets and global geopolitics next week!

Last, but not least, the Solari Report team will publish our May "Ears to the Ground" this week on their road trip from Nashville to Memphis to visit Graceland, Beale Street, the Sun Records Museum and more.

Talk to you Thursday!
