Fructify! - Lessons Learned from Dogwoods Mudhole

"A gentleman can live through anything" ~William Faulkner

By Catherine Austin Fitts

This week on The Solari Report, Franklin Sanders of The Moneychanger joins me to discuss his new trilogy, At Home in Dogwood Mudhole.

Protecting You and Your Family from Psychiatric

At Home in Dogwood Mudhole chronicles the journey that Franklin and his wife Susan take as they leave Memphis and move their family and business to a rural area in middle Tennessee. In the process, several children move to join them on the land as their families grow. The Sanders' business prospers, they learn how to farm, to build homes, and build a church as the cycle of birth and death unfolds within the land, the animals and their family, congregation and friends. This is a story of a family that chooses to prosper through faith, family entrepreneurship and a love of learning in a time when the economy around them is headed in a different direction

Franklin and I will talk about what he and Susan have learned about what it takes to be both fruitful and faithful – lessons we can all apply in our lives in changing times.

Of course, Franklin and I will not be able to resist also touching on the latest developments in the precious metals market!

In Money & Markets this week I will discuss current events in the news and financial world.
