Advanced Technologies of the Breakaway Civilization with Mark McCandlish

By Catherine Austin Fitts

The first presenter at last week's Secret Space Program began quietly, went through his presentation in a careful and deliberate manner and by the time it was over, my world had shifted. This is what people of unique integrity and experience do. For the first time, it seemed possible for me as a lay person to understand propulsion technology and numerous other aspects of space flight. His name was Mark McCandlish and he will join us on the Solari Report this week.

Mark is an internationally-recognized artist who has specialized in aviation and conceptual art within the defense and aerospace industries for the last three decades. He has spent most of his career trying to discover the science that makes UFO performance possible, and believes there is a plausible answer to interstellar flight without violating the currently-accepted laws of physics. Having had literally dozens of sightings since 1966, he feels certain that this carefully protected technology has been co-opted to provide tremendous leverage in world politics, finance and international conflicts.
