Imagination: How it Gets Torn Down; How You

This topic could not be more timely. Last week, the Federal Reserve softened their guidance on anticipated interest rate rises – but reminded global markets that such rises were coming. With sovereign governments around the world carrying high levels of debt, rising interest rates will pull the leash of the dollar “control system.” The question is when and how hard. There is the reason that global institutions from the IMF to the UN are talking about “global debt restructuring.” The folks who own and control the debt are rewriting the rules.

This is a 360 degree discussion – Joseph and I look at the geopolitics and meaning of debt as it functions in the real financial system. This includes the hidden system of finance and black budget that funds the growing national security state and is driving the explosive cocktail of “game-changing” technology, the re-balancing of the global economy and the unraveling of the Post WWII system of global trade. For excellent background for this discussion, I recommend Dr. Farrell's and my presentations at the Secret Space Program as well as several recent studies on the state of global debt – see links posted in the subscriber area.

Catherine's Latest Crowdfund: Scoop.co.nz to Fly In 2015

[CAF Note: Scoop's contribution to free press globally is a modern day David and Goliath story. Great reporting requires great publishers and enlightened owners to back them up – and Scoop has been there for scores of reporters and truth-tellers around the world for many years. When the courts were not there, Scoop's leadership on outing Enron and the people behind them played a critical role in making sure the court of popular opinion did work. Ditto on early transparency about the US mortgage bubble and fraud and corruption in the US federal finances – thousands of people knew how to protect themselves before the bubble burst. Scoop changed the course of history with their support of 911 disclosure, UnansweredQuestions and Paul Thompson's timeline, well ahead of the US press. All of this while sticking to the nuts and bolts of supporting literate citizens and democratic process in one of the most active, entrepreneurial, engaged countries in the world. You would do me a great honor by joining me in supporting the Scoop crowdfunding effort. No amount is too little. Every contribution is appreciated and counts!]

by Alastair Thompson

At Scoop we believe that access to independent news and investigative journalism is a public right that is essential for democracy to thrive. But it is a public right that is eroding. Digital technology now enables a business model to be developed that makes news freely accessible to all citizens, and in which the news apparatus itself can be transparent. Creating this new kind of news organisation is what "Operation Chrysalis" is all about. We are taking a bold step to preserve the public right to access news.

We plan to transform into a not-for-profit media organisation held for the benefit of all NZers, accountable to the community of news communicators and consumers it serves.

Breakthrough Energy with Joel Garbon is Now Available Publicly!

Breakthrough Energy with Joel Garbon is now available to all Solari readers!

Solari Readers can listen to the interview here!

From the report:

Oil and gas prices have dropped by almost 50% over the last year, with significant consequence to the values of companies, currencies and the balance of trade between nations.

What is causing this drop? Clearly, the “Oil Card” is at play – the US manipulating prices lower to pressure Russia as part of economic sanctions. No doubt, a slowing global economy is also reducing demand. However, a wide range of new technologies are also at play – from fracking technology to a global smart phone revolution to increasing productivity in material sciences and renewable energy. However, there is always the possibility of breakthrough energy innovations in the mix.

To explore what is happening in breakthrough energy, I asked industrial scientist Joel Garbon, head of the New Energy Movement, to join us on the Solari Report to update you on the innovations underway. What is the likelihood that breakthrough energy may impact the economy in the foreseeable future? Talking with Joel is always a fascinating exploration of what is possible.

Highlights from Our Last Report

This week on The Solari Report, I will be speaking with publisher and scholar Richard Dolan about underground bases.

Richard and I both spoke at the Secret Space Program last June. Those videos are now freely available and I hope you will access them.

One of the realizations I had listening to the presentations last June was that the percent of the U.S. GNP involved in building out and operating underground and under ocean bases and operations (rumored to include mag lev high speed trains) and the weaponry maintained there is significant. I decided to do more research on the topic and quickly discovered that the best presentation available was Richard's speech on the work of Richard Sauder which he had published.

Underground operations are an important component of how the national security state and the breakaway civilization work – and can impact the local economies and company valuations involved. So I was delighted that Richard agreed to join me on the Solari Report to explore what is known about underground operations and speculate about what is going on miles beneath our homes and communities.
