Jon Rappoport on Imagination: How it Gets Torn Down / How to Build it Up - Apr. 09

To

"Imagination will often carry us to worlds that never were. But without it we go nowhere."

– Carl Sagan

How do we recreate our world rather than live in limited world created for us? All positive change begins with this question. As Spring fills our world with new birth, I was inspired to ask Jon Rappoport to speak to us about imagination – how it gets torn down and how we build it up.

Reality, as it is presented to us, is NOT our only option. Imagination is that quality that does not simply accept reality as it is presented – it fills us with the power to create our world.

How is imagination torn down? Through disappointment. Through the “practical” advice of those around us who are tied to conformity. It is also diminished through a loss of appetite for adventure. How can we possibly give power to our imaginations if we’ve lost our appetite for adventure?

Why is it that people believe the odds they’re facing are insurmountable? Because they’ve devalued themselves. Consequently, we devalue our imaginations.

Let’s get back to the best of who we are. One might say that to the degree which success has been attained in any area, there has always been a kind of quantum leap, a devil-may-care attitude. Jon invites us to renew our sense of the “leap.”

How important is imagination? Just ask the folks who put their imagination into high gear:

“Logic will get you from A to B. Imagination will take you everywhere.”

– Albert Einstein

“Everything you can imagine is real.”

– Pablo Picasso

“The man who has no imagination has no wings.”

– Muhammad Ali

Highlights from Our Last Report

This week, Dr. Joseph Farrell and I resume our conversation on global debt (See Part I here) and what it means to nations, to financial markets, and to individuals.

Here are some of the points we cover in these reports:

- Debt has made it possible for war to explode — and war has made it possible for debt to explode.
- The #1 debt problem in the world is Japan. For years, hedge funds could borrow from Japan for 0% interest. We have squeezed the Japanese incredibly.
- If you raise interest rates, you're looking at sovereign governments around the world losing a $1.5 trillion dollar windfall and having to pay real money to borrow.
- The history of debt is very much a history of war. Historically, as long as you could borrow money to finance a war, you could get the population to go along with war...because they didn't have to pay for it until it was over.
- Why there is so much debt? One possibility is that it will turn everyone into indentured servants before they're given access to much more powerful technology.
- When more debt has been issued than can ever be paid off, you no longer have a financial system — it's a control system.
