Solari Report Update

Rebuilding a Local Economy - September 22nd

To << Test First Name >> << Test Last Name >>

"We must emerge good leadership going forward. If our leadership fails us, war, organized crime and lawlessness will make our choices for us. Who you choose to be, to support or to shun in your daily life will decide our future." ~ Catherine Austin Fitts, 2nd Quarter 2016 Wrap Up

This week on the Solari Report, I will walk you through the opportunities, risks and "who's who" of rebuilding a local economy.

As described in the 2nd Quarter 2016 Wrap Up, one of the essential steps in increasing productivity growth and prosperity is to realign living systems with financial systems. This realignment means decentralizing our economy – rebuilding one element and one place at a time. This task involves rebuilding family wealth and improving productivity growth in the G-7 nations, particularly as it relates to government budgets, health care, and education.

Rebuilding local economies has been a regular topic on the Solari Report. We will publish my outline with a collection of links to the best Solari Reports, audio seminars and articles over the last decade.

In America, rebuilding our economy will require broad-based leadership and teamwork. I strongly encourage US subscribers to invest time between now and November in following their state and local elections. Now is your opportunity to work with friends, family and neighbors to support the leadership essential to helping us to rebuild our local economies.

In Money & Markets this week I will discuss the latest in financial and geopolitical news.

In Let's Go to the Movies, I will review Sully, Clint Eastwood's new movie about pilot Chesley Sullenberger, the US Airways captain who successfully executed an emergency landing in the Hudson River in New York City on January 15, 2009 after a flock of geese had struck and disabled the aircraft engines soon after takeoff. All of the 155 passengers and crew aboard survived, saved by another extraordinary New York volunteer and NYPD rescue effort described in the documentary Miracle of the Hudson Plane Crash.

Solari Food Series - The Future of Biodynamic and Organic Farming

Solari Food Series - Dave Andrews

"Agriculture is the most healthful, most useful and most noble employment of man."
~ George Washington

This week, Harry Blazer interviews David Andrews, the executive director of the Michael Fields Institute in East Troy, Wisconsin.

Michael Fields was founded by my good friends Christopher and Martina Mann to promote biodynamic agriculture in the United States through education and research. Biodynamic agriculture is an approach first developed in central Europe in the early 20th century as a result of Rudolf Steiner's Agriculture Course.

David Andrews is a renaissance man of agriculture. After running his family farm in Iowa, he traveled and worked in Eastern Europe as Global Programs Specialist with Iowa State University Extension. He then returned to Michael Fields Institute to help build bridges between Michael Fields and the biodynamic farming community and organic and conventional farmers and to contribute to the inspiration and education of a new generation of farmers. Now in his last year at Michael Fields, he will be returning to Iowa at the end of this year.

David is a farmer who understands what it takes to grow both food and farmers. He has worked with conventional, organic and biodynamic farmers in numerous cultures and ecologies. In this fascinating interview, David offers his predictions for the future of biodynamic and organic farming and the future of food.

The interview will be posted here for subscribers on Tuesday, September 20.

Solari Food Series: Vital Soils – The Foundation of Life, Part II

Solari Food Series - Angela Curtes

"...let us consider, to begin with, the soil of the Earth which is the foundation of all Agriculture" ~ Rudolf Steiner, The Agriculture Course, "Lecture 2"

By Catherine Austin Fitts

Harry Blazer returns this week with two great interviews at the Michael Fields Institute in East Troy Wisconsin.

The first — The Future of Biodynamic and Organic Farming — is a fascinating discussion with Institute Executive Director David Andrews. His second interview is with biodynamic soil expert Angela L Curtes of the Yggdrasil Land Foundation and Michael Fields Institute. The discussion with Angela is Part II of "Vital Soils – The Foundation of Life".

Rebuilding our local economies requires rebuilding our health which requires rebuilding our local foods systems which requires rebuilding the health of our soil – it's all connected. Angela provides an outstanding overview of why the dirt under your feet offers you so much opportunity and life.

We will post the interview for subscribers here on Tuesday, September 20.

From the transcript:

Catherine Austin Fitts: The debt growth model is done, and we are entering a period of institutional reform. We must emerge good leader-ship going forward. If our leadership fails us, war, organized crime and lawlessness will make our choices for us. Who you choose to be, to support or to shun in your daily life will decide our future.

No other question is more important than “who leads?” As sovereign individuals, we can choose to lead. In so doing, we must support and align ourselves with other leaders around us who are effective in the wider world. One of our first Solari Report slogans was, “Who’s your farmer, who’s your banker, where’s your money?” As millions of people allocate their time, attention, and resources every day, thus we invent our world together.
