Homan Square: Is Someone Prototyping Domestic Rendition? - Dec. 17

To

"Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me....For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not."

~ Matthew 25:40-43

Note: This Solari Report will be published on the shows and websites of all panelists and will be available to the public at solari.com.

Throughout 2015, The Guardian has published ongoing revelations of Homan Square in Chicago, IL. Where people arrested by the Chicago police have been interrogated, tortured, sexually abused, and "disappeared." There have been so many allegations and witnesses that The Guardian now maintains a home page for Homan Square coverage. One witness described Homan Square as “domestic black site,” and The Guardian states that it was used to “disappear 7,000 people.”

On this week’s Solari Report, we gather an all-star panel to discuss Homan Square, its implications for our communities and what we can do about it. Our panelists:

- Junio Ricardo Stanton, producer and host of the Digital Underground and the Cyberspace Sanctuary.
- Cynthia McKinney – Former US Congresswoman, presidential candidate and professor (Tweets here).
- Catherine Austin Fitts, Publisher of the Solari Report.

The coverage of Homan Square in British publications is noteworthy. Throughout the year I have commented on the serious criticisms of the United States by long-standing British allies. Examples include:

- The Guardian broke the Snowden revelations regarding NSA surveillance in 2013 (and continuing).
- In 2014, the BBC published the second two parts of The Worricker Trilogy with its not-so-veiled criticisms of US tactics of bribing British prime ministers using personal foundations and the profits of corruption involved in building global rendition centers for the CIA.

The Economist has commented on the US leadership’s drift towards totalitarianism on numerous occasions:

- America’s Aristocracy is Calcifying
- Liberty’s Lost Decade
- The Moral Failures of America’s Prison Industrial Complex
- Dominant and Dangerous: As America’s Economic Supremacy Fades, the Primacy of the Dollar Looks Unsustainable

The use of criminal prosecution as a tool of centralizing control is clearly out of control. The US now has the world’s highest rate of incarceration – it is 40% higher than that of the second-highest country, Rwanda.

“The reach of the carceral state today is breathtaking. More than 8 million people in the United States – or 1 in 23 adults – are under some form of state control, including jail, prison, probation, parole, community sanctions, drug courts, and immigration detention. Millions more are booked into jail each year. An estimated 70-100 million people – or as many as one in three Americans – has a criminal record. Millions of people have been condemned to “civil death,” denied core civil liberties and social benefits because of a criminal conviction.”

~ Professor Marie Gottschalk

My efforts to warn against private prisons in the 1990's (described in my online book Dillon Read & Co & the Aristocracy of Stock Profits) ran into a buzzsaw of private interests running hard narcotics, mortgage and housing fraud, and private prisons at the highest levels of Wall Street and Washington – all with significant bipartisan support. There are indications that popular support for change is building – with candidates historically pushing for incarceration now claiming a desire to reform.

Unfortunately, Homan Square signals that these claims may be merely campaign rhetoric.

Our conversation will range widely. Possible topics include many we have covered on related Solari Reports, including whether investment syndicates – such as the mythic Gladstone Group in The Worricker Trilogy – were created to finance both private prisons and global rendition centers as part of one all-encompassing control vision.

One thing we will talk about for sure: what this means to you and me and what we can do about it! And a special treat – Cynthia gives us a sneak preview of actions she is considering.

There is no better way to celebrate the Christmas season and the birth of Christ than to think of ways that we can reach out and help those among us who are hungry, in prison or – worse yet – have been “disappeared.” Please keep them in your thoughts and prayers.

2015 Holiday Greetings

Dear Friends, Clients & Subscribers:

Each of us at Solari sees and hears the need for restoration and rejuvenation throughout our lives and work. We hear the effort to apply the Golden Rule in our lives, our work and our finances. We hear a call for a positive and productive way forward through the changes upon us. We are often asked, “What can I do?” One of the things each one of us can do is to pray. No matter how pressed our schedule is, there is always time for prayer.

For our Christmas card this year, here are some of my favorite scriptures and prayers in the form of (36) prayers and devotionals – one for each day of the month as well as Christmas, New Years Eve, New Years and your birthday.

Special Solari Report: Beat Down at US Universities

"We all live in the South Bronx because that neighborhood is the unavoidable proof that American civilization can stop. It can stop literally right around the corner, and if it does nobody can do a thing about it..."

~ Michael Ventura

Covert operations are moving through US university campuses and reaching epidemic proportions. What's happening?

University campuses have felt the growing tentacles of centralization for quite some time. The financial sources of increased control have been growing for decades. The list includes:

- Military-industrial research
- Federal government grants
- Federal funding and enforcement in hospitals and in medical and nursing schools
- Big media involvement in college sports
- Federal credit support to student loans

Many years ago, I wrote about the relationship between narcotics trafficking and mortgage fraud organized around urban universities and how the academics failed to notice. This was, perhaps, due to the fact that universities were benefiting from laundered funds.

As universities have emerged as big business, we hear reports that students are (at best) inputs to make the engine go. Or (at worst) targets to be prayed upon – guinea pigs for research, mind control, subject to rape and abuse and loaded up with predatory debt. The result is debasement: more expensive schooling with much less education taking place.

Not only has central control been growing, so has central surveillance and access to students' personal communication and information. The infrastructure is now in place via cell phones, social media and satellites to gear up significant covert operations targeted at administrators, professors and students at US colleges and universities.

What's the target? First you move your people in. Then you gain control of the money, the jobs, the intellectual capital, and the credibility.

There are endowments worth billions to manage, large bank accounts, bonds to be issued, scholarships for the children of people who play ball, research grants, media contracts for athletic events, facilities construction and maintenance contracts. There is junk science to be engineered and published and respectability given to new government policies. In a deflationary environment, such an enormous flow of funds and assets grows ever more attractive.

Now we see waves of students protesting over divide-and-conquer social issues that are wholly divorced from the real issues plaguing them – issues such as student debt and the debasement of education. As a result, we see administrators and professors frozen in fear, ready to play ball or be fired, and a serious attack on freedom of speech. While presidential political candidates are floating trial balloons for totalitarianism, the university campuses are on a politically correct lock down.

A coincidence? Hardly.

Highlights from Our Last Report - An Update on Global Spraying with Clifford Carnicom

"We really shouldn't be [alive] with the lack of oxygen, all the toxic metals coming in, and the poisonous food, and yet here we are. So there is a miracle, and there's something beyond what we can see or touch that is supporting us, for which we have to be deeply grateful"

~ Dr Gwen Scott

After my introductory presentation, Clifford Carnicom has joined us on the Solari Report for two previous discussions regarding global spraying — his insights are thought through carefully and absolutely fascinating:

- Unanswered Questions About Chemtrails
- More Questions About Chemtrails
- A Solari Report Special with Clifford Carnicom

Here is an excerpt from my discussion with Clifford on this week's Solari Report:

Clifford Carnicom: I found a paper by the Federation of American Scientists and it was like this group was trying to make amends for having been involved in nuclear testing. They were postulating what they felt they might be involved with in the future and they brought up the topic of LIDAR. It was fascinating to me because this is obviously a think-tank at the highest level in terms of what we think is the most important thing to be working on. And this group was putting forth the proposition that they should be working on LIDAR. So I looked up LIDAR to conceptually understand what it was and it fascinated me to no end in terms of the implications.

Many of us know RADAR. Radar is a system where you bounce a radio wave off of something and you can detect its existence or not. LIDAR is the same idea except that they use light waves instead of radio waves. The main difference for LIDAR would be the size of the particles you're detecting. Instead of detecting a boat or a ship or a plane, LIDAR is directed towards microscopic, sub-micron sized particles.

So when you start thinking about the development of a system that essentially could monitor and track the location and distribution and movement of material on a micro / nano scale, the possibilities are completely endless in terms of what that means. One of them was certainly that this has real prospects for development of surveillance systems at essentially a microscopic level. You breathe particulates. Particulates are in our body. How could I eliminate the prospect of developing a system that would allow me to track information down to the microscopic level at any location that I chose to?

Catherine Austin Fitts: In 2000-2001, someone I knew who used to be very senior in covert operations at the CIA showed up in my life very suspiciously and tried to persuade me of many strange ideas. One was that our breathing the sprayed materials caused me and everyone else to display a global ID system. The particles would find each other in our bodies and they would create the equivalent of an organic bar code or chip.

Clifford Carnicom: How can I eliminate that from consideration? Because what is being said there is exactly the picture that I have. It's quite sensible to me that unique signatures could be presented at essentially the cellular level or lower. It's quite conceivable to me.

Catherine Austin Fitts: I think what these guys literally want is the ultimate database of everything that be managed as a dynamic system in a simulation.

And there's more:

Clifford Carnicom: If you read Bernard Eastland's patent (what's called the HAARP patent) you'll find a very interesting reference to the development of a weapons system that involves magnetic fields of the earth. And the weapons system — what it actually does — is accumulate enough energy on a geophysical level that lifts up the magnetic field of the earth and then slams it down back on the earth. It's called a "heave weapon" within that document and it's characterized as having all of the advantages of a nuclear bomb without actually having a bomb. This is an example of a geophysical influence at an earth-scale — a global scale — that is far beyond just a notion of the weather.
